

The Cercle de l'Éventail (the French Fan Circle) was created at the initiative of a group of collectors, museum curators and art professionals who wanted to bring together amateurs who could support the efforts of the fan department of Galliera Museum, Paris fashion museum.

In 1985, the exhibition The Fan, Mirror of the Belle Epoque was the starting point for this experience; the Cercle de l'Éventail began its activities in 1986. Three festivals of international scope followed in Paris in 2005, 2013 and 2015.

The association concentrates its efforts on editing original studies, re-publishing old texts, publishing exhibition catalogues, and providing ongoing support to young contemporary creators and the museums that the association builds relationships with. The Cercle de l'Éventail organises regular work meetings, conferences, study trips and publishes two bulletins a year, rich in numerous research articles and colour photos.

Its action extends all over the world, to both well-informed and amateur collectors, notably through its links with its counterparts, the British FCI (Fan Circle International), the American FANA (Fan Association of North America) and the German Fächerfreunde.
